Uncatchable

by Deacon Dan

This week I spent some time doing what trout fishers like me do in the dead of winter. I spent a pleasant afternoon thinking about wild waters full of wild trout. My memory could have gone to many different places and moments since I have been chasing trout for over fifty years now. It settled not on a safely-netted trophy, but on likely the biggest brown trout I never caught.

I recalled that fateful late September day when, as I rounded a bend in a favorite stream I saw that a large dead elm had fallen across the water. The banks were steep and I suspected that the water ahead was too deep for wading, so I climbed the ten feet up to the top of the bank intending to walk around the deadfall and fish it from the upstream side. I didn't want to spook any fish, so I stayed away from the edge of the bank for the most part. Curiosity though overpowered me and I took just one peek.

There, just downstream from the main trunk of the dead elm, and right in between the "V" formed by two large branches jutting off from the main trunk at a forty-five-degree angle, a huge brown trout was finning lazily in the slowed current. I guessed the bruiser at about 25-26 inches. I looked up ahead and noticed that about 75 yards upstream the water was a gurgling over a gravel bar. Simple. I would stay out of sight on top of the bank until that point, cross the stream at that gravel bar and carefully creep back down the opposite bank where there was a flat spot to stand within casting distance of that big trout.

Well, the plan worked perfectly until I got close to that deadfall. As I tried to drift my nymph into that hole and in front of that monster fish I found that the way the deadfall and the current interacted there was a slow swirling eddy just ahead of the main tree trunk that carried my fly away from the trout and into the silty shallows. I spent thirty minutes and tried every cast and trick I knew but I could not get the fly to drift anywhere near that fish. Finally, I left him there, still finning lazily, blissfully unaware of my presence.

The next day I fished the same stretch of stream, and once again climbed the steep bank ahead of the deadfall elm. I crept up to the edge and peered over. Sure enough, the big brown was there. This time though I watched him for a while and then went upstream, crossed at the gravel bar and kept right on going. I knew that fish was uncatchable.

Our God is not like that big trout. He is not uncatchable. In fact, all you need to do is to desire to find him and he will search you out and come to you.

EXCITING NEWS!!!

As many of you know, I am retiring the end of March. We began a search for a new business administrator back in November, and I am excited to let you know that, effective January 9, Dcn. Bill Gerl, our current Liturgy Coordinator, will assume the role of Business Administrator. (Bill's first priority will be to find a new Liturgy Coordinator). I will work with Bill through the transition and trust that you will show him the same wonderful support and encouragement you always gave me.

Society of St. Vincent DePaul Encounter

We are called to be Jesus to everyone we meet. I want to share one of our experiences we witnessed on a home visit this past week. We visited a young grandmother that needed help to pay her rent. By spending some time with her and listening to her story, we found out that she was not a well person. She is on dialysis three times a week and that means she needed to recuperate three times a week. Her daughter's boyfriend stole almost half of her rent money and she was looking for help. She shared much more of her life with us, but I don't have room in this article to write it all down. We ended up helping her with $265.00. She said she knew we were coming to see her, because her faith said Jesus was going to answer her prayers. She was very thankful and we are thankful for Jesus sending her to us.

This new year, would you please consider checking St. Vincent DePaul out? Come to a meeting and experience our great group! We meet at 4:15pm on the 3rd Monday of the month at Annunciation in room 103. If you have questions, please call Mike Charles at 920-530-6116. Have a Blessed New Year!

CONTRIBUTION STATEMENTS

Again this year, we will not be doing a general mailing of 2022 Contribution Statements. If you would like a statement, please contact Laurie or MJ at the parish office, and we will gladly print a statement for you.

Appleton choir chimes in at Christmas

BY JEAN PEERENBOOM | FOR THE COMPASS

APPLETON — The bells will be ringing sweetly on Christmas Eve at St. Mary's Parish. That's handbells as The Bells of St. Mary Handbell Choir brings back its ringing after an absence due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Director Martha Paalman said the choir will be marking the 40th anniversary of its first performance, which was on Christmas Eve 1982. Christmas Eve will also mark just the second time they have rung since COVID-19 shut everything down in 2020 — that was at Easter earlier this year.

And now they are preparing to ring prior to the 10 p.m. Mass on Christmas Eve, beginning at 9 p.m. followed by the parish choir concert. The handbell choir will perform from the loft at the back of church so parishioners can hear the bells, but not see the performers, which, Paalman explained, can make the experience all the more ethereal.

Rehearsals in church just recently resumed and the handbell choir is looking for more members. At present, there are eight members including Paalman, who both directs and plays one or two of the bells in each selection. Joining Paalman are Dee Ebben, Mary School, Kim Schmidt, Jenny Schraufnagel, Amy Merwald, Karen Berg and Peggy Kostelnik.

At present, the choir uses bells in two octaves because there are only eight members. The challenge with handbells, Paalman said, "is that you can't have missing notes. If you do, it is really noticeable."

FRANKLY, FRANCIS

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

In our catechesis on discernment, we have considered its various elements, including prayer, self-knowledge, spiritual experience and the signs assuring us of the rightness of our decisions.

A fundamental attitude that must guide the entire process of discernment, however, is that of vigilance. Jesus often warns his disciples of the need to be watchful, lest the enemy take advantage of our distraction and bring our good efforts to naught. The Lord gives the example of an unclean spirit who, chased from a house, returns to find it clean but empty, since its owner is absent, and then comes back with seven of his companions.

Like that owner, we too can fail to guard our house and keep our hearts pure as a dwelling for the Lord. When we trust excessively in ourselves and not the Lord's grace, our presumption can open a door to the evil one and can find ourselves "worse than before" (cf. Lk 12:45).

Helping the calendar turn through the church's decorations

BY BENJAMIN WIDEMAN | FOR THE COMPASS

DE PERE — The day after Thanksgiving was anything but a rest day for Sue Yakoubek. With help from a few volunteers, Yakoubek spent nearly eight hours on Black Friday decorating for the Advent season at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church.

"It makes me feel good when people tell me they like the decorations or when they say the church looks beautiful," she said.

"Whatever the season, I try to make the church look like that's the season we are in. When people see the decorations and tell me they like what I'm doing, and they feel 'in the season,' that gives me incentive to keep going.

My feet sometimes get pretty sore from standing for a whole day of decorating. But if people like what we've done, then it's worth it."

She collaborates with her pastor, Norbertine Fr. James Baraniak, and the parish's director of music and liturgy, Jody Strnad.

Our full story appears in the Dec. 2 issue.

5 THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW

The Baptism of the Lord

BY PATRICIA KASTEN | THE COMPASS

1 The feast is celebrated this year on a Monday, Jan. 9, instead of on Sunday.

2 In countries like the United States, where Epiphany is marked on Sunday (this year Jan. 8), the Baptism is moved to Monday. (The Cana wedding is the Gospel on Saturday Jan. 7 this year.)

3 The Lord's Baptism is one part of the Epiphany feast: the Magi's visit, the Lord's Baptism and the wedding at Cana. A separate "commemoration" for the Lord's Baptism, on Jan. 13, was first instituted in 1955 by Pope Pius XII.

4 In 1960, St. John XXIII elevated it to a feast day, also on Jan 13, one week after Epiphany (Jan. 6).

5 In 1969, St. Paul VI moved the feast to the Sunday after Epiphany.

Everlasting hope throughout Christmas

Merry Christmas, Brothers and Sisters! I hope you have a wonderful Christmas Day and season.

Remember the phrase, "Jesus is the reason for the season?" It became popular when people were losing the sense of the real purpose of Christmas. Instead of remembering the birth of Our Lord, people were getting absorbed in the commercial aspect of the season, focused on giving and receiving gifts. Giving gifts at Christmas is a wonderful tradition, but the real gift of Christmas is the gift of the Father.

BISHOP'S CORNER

Bishop David Ricken

God loves every person ever created so much that he sent his only son to save us. At Christmas, God gives us the everlasting gift of HOPE!

Without hope we perish. Our lives become empty and far more difficult than they need to be. In Jesus Christ, son of the everlasting Father, HOPE was born in a cave because there was no place else to go. He was born on the margins and placed in a feeding trough for animals as his first crib. The very Son of God was born in the poorest and most humble of conditions.

From that cave the world began to hear in the cries of that little baby, "Life has meaning. God loves you and I am here to prove it with the gift of my life." With his birth, life makes sense; life has meaning. HOPE is restored.

As you take time to meet Jesus in the manger this Christmas season, may your lives be filled with the hope that only he can bring. Merry Christmas!
